

WE SHOULD TALK...

Learn about end-of-life preparation and planning.

Become a better care manager for yourself and your loved ones.

Having conversations with family and friends about end-of-life wishes is as important as preparing end-of-life documents.

This program features two vignettes followed by a guided look at our Healthcare Toolkit, a comprehensive resource for navigating serious illness. Local actors in the one-act plays portray the contrast of prepared and unprepared families facing life-threatening illness.

Invite us to your faith community, civic organization, or even a family gathering to share this important message. Let's talk about it - so we can be better prepared for ourselves and our loved ones. Contact Britni Smith, Education Director, by phone or email, bsmith@clarehouse.org, to learn more.
